

1. Reading Test.

Steve was on an exchange in Russia. Read how he saw Russian traffic.

My Impressions of Russia

In my summer holidays I went to Russia. It made me aware¹ that Russian public transport system is better than British. Trams, the metro and trolleybuses are all great means of controlling pollution. In Britain we travel so much in our individual cars that in some major cities air is made dirty. What is equally² damaging is that most cars on the streets are usually occupied only by one person. I am not a die-hard environmentalist but I enjoy clean air and the prevention of further destruction of ozone layer. The Moscow metro is very efficient in getting most of its 11-million people where they want to go. The metro is kept very clean and in good repair. The Tube in London and the subway in New York and other cities are not nearly as nice. The Muscovites think that their traffic is bad. Then traffic in London is unbearable.
